1. Title of the Practice

Sabujer Kache Sabujer Sathe

2. Objectives of the Practice

The primary objectives of the practice are to promote environmental awareness, foster sustainable practices, enhance a greenery in both within the college campus and the surrounding community. This initiative is driven by the underlying principles of conserving natural resources, reducing the carbon footprint, and enhancing biodiversity. By integrating eco-friendly practices into the daily operations of the college, such as implementing energy-efficient measures like LED lighting and green audits and incorporating environmental education into the curriculum and campus activities, the aim is to instill a sense of responsibility towards the environment in our students, staff and neighbourhood peoples. This holistic approach not only helps in creating a sustainable and eco-friendly campus but also sets an example for the broader community, highlighting the importance of environmental stewardship and sustainability.

3. The Context

Kultali Dr. B. R. Ambedkar College is situated in the in the remote and ecologically sensitive Sundarbans area of South 24 Parganas District, a region facing significant ecological and environmental challenges due to its remote and sensitive ecosystem. The area is characterized by high population density, limited access to resources, and vulnerability to climate change impacts such as rising sea levels and cyclones. Addressing these challenges requires innovative and context-specific strategies. The college recognized the need to incorporate green practices to mitigate environmental degradation, improve sustainability, and serve as a model for other institutions in similar ecological zones. The initiative was designed to respond to these contextual challenges while leveraging the college's role as an educational leader in the region.

4. The Practice

The Green Initiative at Kultali Dr. B. R. Ambedkar College encompasses several key practices:

- Tree Plantation Drives: Regular tree plantation drives are conducted to increase green cover and combat soil erosion. Native species are chosen to enhance local biodiversity.
- Waste Management: It includes segregation of waste into Bio degradable and Non Bio degradable.
- Waste Reduction: Initiatives to minimize waste generation through reuse, reduction, and responsible purchasing of materials.
- Awareness Programs: Conducting workshops and campaigns to educate the campus community on the importance of water conservation and efficient water use practices.
- Workshops and Seminars: Organizing regular workshops, seminars, and guest lectures on sustainability, environmental protection, and green practices.
- Community Engagement: The college engages with the local community to spread awareness about environmental conservation and encourages community participation in green initiatives.

These practices are unique as they not only focus on campus sustainability but also actively involve the local community, creating a model of community-based environmental stewardship.

5. Evidence of Success The success of the Green Initiative is evident through various metrics and achievements:

- Increased Green Cover: Over 700 trees have been planted in a span of 5 years, significantly enhancing the campus and nearby areas' greenery. Out of which almost 300 trees have lived successfully.
- Water Conservation: The college implemented ground water recharging by reusing rainwater through pouring it into college pond. This leads to a) Ground water recharging by storing it in college pond, b) Supply the water to nearby farming land for cultivation, c) The pond used for breeding fishes.
- Waste Reduction: Effective waste management has led to a significant reduction in waste sent to landfills, promoting a cleaner campus environment.
- Energy Efficiency: A reduction in the college's electricity bills due to the use of solar panel, implementation of energy-efficient practices, including the use of LED lighting and energy-efficient appliances.
- Community Engagement: Gradually the number of participations from the locals in community driven environmental activities have increase substantially, reflecting heightened environmental awareness and stewardship in the neighbourhood.
- Recognition: The college has received recognition for its sustainable and green practices from local Member of Legislative Assembly and also from Department of Forest Government of West Bengal.

6. Problems Encountered and Resources Required

The major problems encountered include:

- Problem in mindset: As the college is located in a rural area, students and locals belong from nearby villages, where availability of green is more than sufficient. Thus, they have lack of awareness about over use of environment.
- Funding Constraints: Limited financial resources to implement and maintain green practices.
- Resistance to Change: Initial resistance from some stakeholders towards adopting new practices.
- Poverty: Most of students of the college belongs from BPL category. They prefer cheap products over environment friendly products. Therefore, the amount of usage of cheap non-biodegradable product is very high.
- Logistical Challenges: Difficulties in sourcing materials and expertise due to the remote location.

7. Notes (Optional)

The Green initiative serves as a replicable model for other educational institutions, especially those in ecologically sensitive regions.

Programme Report

The "Brikkho Mohotsob" organized by the NSS Unit exemplified the spirit of community-driven environmental conservation. By bringing together volunteers and 17 local residents to plant saplings along the roadsides, the event not only beautified the landscape but also fostered a sense of camaraderic and shared responsibility towards nurturing the environment. With shovels in hand and determination in their hearts, volunteers and local residents set out to plant saplings along the roadsides. Guided by experienced volunteers, participants dug holes, planted saplings, and gently tamped the soil around them, symbolizing their commitment to nurturing the environment. The success of the "Brikkho Mohotsob" would not have been possible without the dedication and commitment of volunteers, local residents, and college administration. Their collective efforts underscore the transformative power of community engagement in creating a greener, healthier, and more sustainable future.
